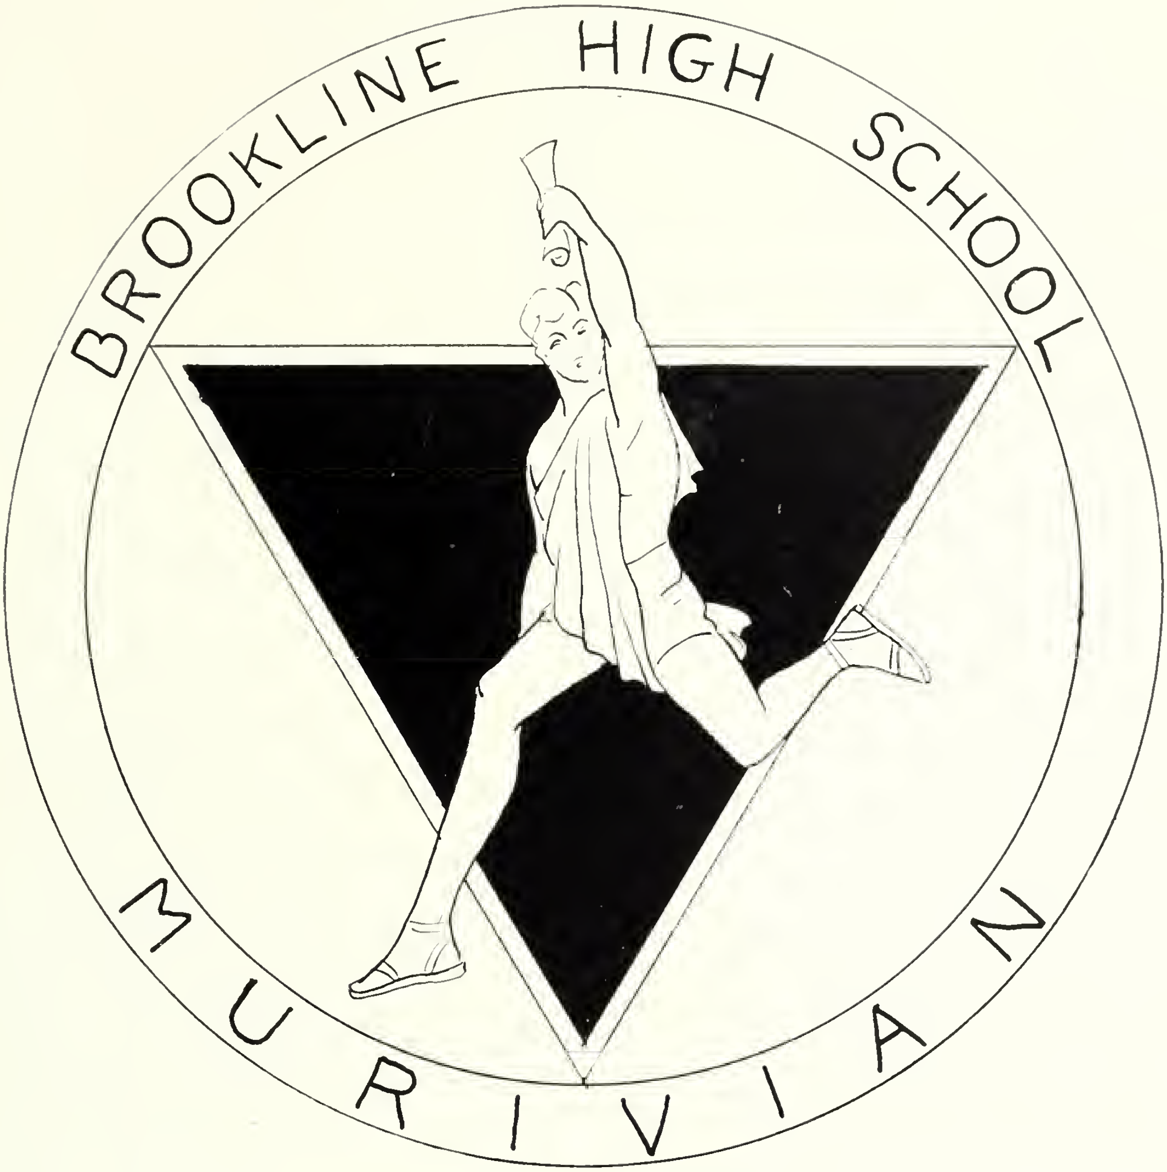
Brookline High School
Brookline, Massachusetts

1947



Looking back upon twenty-five years of significant progress, we agree upon this symbol as best expressing "youth full of grace, force, and fascination". The fleet figure dashing across the triangular shield represents youth accepting life's challenge: to consolidate gains, overcome weaknesses, and emerge triumphant from the fight in the finest cause in all the world—the struggle for the betterment of mankind.

High above his head, symbolic youth holds a scroll, universal emblem of knowledge and truth whose influence will guide him. It is our hope that in the pages of this yearbook our readers may find a faithful reflection of Brookline High School's young people as they share in youth's search for knowledge and truth.

ROBERT G. ANDREE

Headmaster

On my office wall is a beautiful plaque, prepared by an Italian craftsman in Cairo, Egypt. With ordinary paper and ordinary ink he has wrought an exceptional artistry. "Twelve Things to Remember" he entitled it.

Value of Time
Success of Perseverance
Pleasure of Working
Dignity of Simplicity
Worth of Character
Power of Kindness
Influence of Example
Obligation of Duty
Wisdom of Economy
Virtue of Patience
Improvement of Talent
Joy of Originating

This is your memory book. Out of ordinary learning and ordinary activities many of you have wrought exceptional lives. I trust that your memories of Brookline will be happy ones. In each year may you have found something pleasant and profitable to remember about Brookline High School.

Robert G. Andree

Dedication

The Murivian, in the course of its twenty-five years of publication, has watched several fine men build upon the work of others, adding laurels upon laurels. In the short space of one year, Dr. Robert G. Andree's interest and cooperation have become a unifying bond for our school and have pointed the way for new greatness. His firmness, understanding and sense of justice, have won their way into the hearts of all. Dr. Andree has revitalized our school and given us new horizons. He has imbued students and faculty alike with his vision.

Maintaining the standards of Brookline High School is a great task—strengthening and augmenting them is clearly within this man's proven power. It is with justifiable pride that we claim Dr. Robert G. Andree as a great leader of Brookline High School.

MARY W. SAWYER

My most cordial greetings to the Class of 1947! Members of the one hundredth class to be graduated from Brookline High School, you can look back over a long succession of classes and know that you in your turn are joining the goodly number of those who have made notable records for themselves and for the school they represent. The records of those older graduates challenge you today. With your greater advantages you should go far in science, in the arts, in government, in industry, and in "the fine art of living."

The war is over. Your older brothers paid heavily that you might live in a world at peace. Are you striving in your turn to win the victories of peace? The responsibility will soon be yours, and we who have known you are confident of your success. Whatever may be your plans, may you enter upon your new adventure with hope and good cheer and carry with you "all that is best and noblest in the American ideal!"

Call upon us when we can help in any way.

Very cordially yours,
Mary W. Sawyer

To the Graduating Class of 1947:

Awaiting each of you is a life that can be rich and abundant if you make it so. Your newspapers and radios tell you that there are vast decisions in the making — issues which will broadly shape the pattern of all our lives; you may feel powerless to influence these fateful decisions, yet if you join the valiant band of men and women of good will all over the earth, you can become part of mankind's struggle to throw off selfish interests, ruthless power-grabbing and distrust in its climb toward a world not divided by its nations, races, or religions. You can do your part by respecting the rights of all faiths and racial groups, and living democratically as an individual and a citizen.

And for your personal lives, never forget to have joy in little things, to laugh, and to take time for wonder.

murivian editorial staff

With twenty-four yearbooks marking the progress of successive staffs and advisers, the twenty-fifth Staff bowed deeply to past achievements and resolved firmly to augment these standards. In addition to all the ordinary complications of yearbook publications, the Staff was confronted with new problems of costs, delays, and scarcities.

Only those who have toiled through the adventures and routines of producing a yearbook can appreciate the rigors and satisfactions that this year's Staff have endured. What to the uninitiated would seem only chaos and confusion is, in fact, a multiplicity of details worked out under pressure of deadlines. Here a deadline, there a deadline, everywhere a deadline! Layouts, write ups, pictures, statistics, identifications, schedules, signatures, and deadlines, kept the Staff completely occupied day in and day out. Many a late afternoon, Saturday morning, and vacation day saw the editor and his assistants busily at work. The entire staff, consisting largely of Seniors aided by a number of energetic Junior Apprentices, labored with unselfish devotion to produce a book worthy of its twenty-four predecessors.

This remembrance of things past and still continuing is for you, the student, the teacher, the administrator. The book is for you and about you. Here in picture and prose is Brookline High School, 1947.

Faculty Advisor—MISS SHAW

Going up! These words best describe the mounting costs and problems that fill the busy minds of this efficient staff. Who but they could work so well with lists, statistics, money, deposits and have everything balance? Ever faithful to their responsibilities, they provided the necessary knowledge, perserverance, and skill needed for their considerable tasks. Under the leadership of the faculty advisors, Mr. Moulton and Mr. Warren, the Business Staff worked long hours to enable the yearbook to support itself and to offer the student body a book worthy of its tradition. That they managed well, this volume is final proof.

Roberts Housemaster

To the Class of 1947:

Your high school years have been difficult. They have been years of war and a year of troubled peace. You have faced the emergencies of this period with admirable strength, and you have accomplished the work you set out to do.

I congratulate you upon the outstanding contributions which you have made to the school. May you continue to make contributions to society and to find solutions to the problems which will increasingly confront you and our country in the future years. The world is calling for leadership such as you can give.

The years I have been privileged to serve with you I shall always remember with deep affection.

Ever faithfully yours,
Eleanor R. Johnson

With approximately fifty veterans enrolled in Brookline High School to obtain that suddenly precious diploma, the sine qua non to higher education, something new has been added to B.H.S. All branches of the armed forces are represented in this group. All of these young men intend to further their education under the G.I. Bill of Rights. These veterans bring a breadth of experience and a practical point of view that enlivens our scene. Returning to High School after spanning continents takes real stuff. The school welcomes them back as long lost brothers and wishes them the best of success.

Acting and the ability to act is not completely innate. It takes months, even years of hard work to develop proficiency in drama. The Acting Workshop furnishes an opportunity to all students desiring to learn the fine points of the theatre. Diction, stage movement, and expression can be learned here under the able direction of Mrs. Coffin and Mr. Fleming. The tedium of the work is, to these prospective thespians, a small sacrifice to pay for the thrill of striding on stage before a full house. All is not toil in this industrious group; the members find stimulation and enjoyment in the company of their friends and fellow-members.

To all the flying enthusiasts at Brookline High, the Aero Club offers a chance to increase their knowledge of aviation and the fields of science and industry associated with it. The members, at their monthly meetings, hear lectures on such topics as aerodynamics, jet propulsion and rocket power, as well as discuss informally the problems and possibilities of aviation past, present, and future. However, the special interests of the Aero Club are the construction and study of all types of plane models and their operation and characteristics in flight. The handiwork of these expert model makers can be seen on display near Room 331 in the Science Department. In making the student body more air-minded, the Aero Club performs an important duty in this age of aeronautics.

Membership in Alpha Pi, Brookline High Schools Honorary Society, requires a well-balanced scholastic and extra-curricular record. The letters alpha and pi symbolize the ideals of this organization, for they stand for the Greek words for excellence and leadership. Members are elegible for nomination to Alpha Pi only when they have proven their excellence and leadership by earning a specific number of points awarded for scholastic and extra-curricular activity. After the nomination of a candidate, the members of Alpha Pi may elect him as a member. Members may be identified by their key-shaped pins or pendants, among the most coveted possessions of a student at Brookline High. Surely, the desire of most students to belong to Alpha Pi is a factor in their continued efficiency throughout high school, and so, Alpha Pi is performing an invaluable task by training the leaders of tomorrow.

Walking down the corridor adjacent to the Art Department, many curious students have stood in awe and admiration of the work of the Art Club. All the masterpieces are the result of the hard and inspired work of the Art Club, which fosters the artistic spirit in Brookline High. The primary object of the Art Club, under the guidance of Mrs. Woodberry, is to promote interest and instruct its members in all phases of art work. On the agenda of the Art Club are included such diverse activities as picnics and trips to museums, artistic contests and games, costume designing and colored movies. The Art Club enjoys lectures on subjects relating to Art. This industrious organization frequently contributes much to school events by drawing posters and designs for other clubs and social committees.

Led by Miss Horn, this select group works tirelessly to achieve the most artistic and most perfect effect possible in the settings and details of the school's dramatic productions. Be the problem fireplaces, murals, or furniture groupings, the Workshop will come through successfully with the desired effects. To this ambitious organizations', tired bones, late hours and occasional bruises are well worth the joy and satisfaction of opening night. The members have fun performing even their most menial tasks since their spirits are lightened by "gay camaraderie" and the delightful feeling of being on the inside of a really good production.

During the Fall and Spring, Mr. Joslin leads the band in marching formations and practices. Other rehearsals find the melodious group busy with its wide repertoire of music of all types in preparation for assemblies and special programs. This organization plays a colorful part in school and on the field. It contributed greatly to school and to the winning of our Class "B" football championship for two consecutive years.

Having successfully concluded its important wartime job of selling War Stamps and Bonds, the Bank Staff has again taken charge of all banking at Brookline High School with a dependable efficiency too seldom recognized by the student body. To its headquarters in Room 234, the tellers of each home room send the deposits through messengers selected from the staff in the junior year. There, under the supervision of Mr. Meyers and his assistants, Harriet Rossman and Sue Brody, the results are recorded, and banking percentages calculated. Every other Tuesday throughout the year, the Bank Staff gives generously of its time in the interests of promoting better banking habits among the student body. Brookline High School is rightly proud of this efficient service organization.

The members of the Biology Club seek to further their knowledge and interests in the biological sciences by group experimentation in botany and zoology. They are also vitally interested in an understanding of living things in the great out-of-doors. This is evident in the many field trips they take throughout the year. This club came into existence during the past year and its accomplishments clearly prove its worth to our school. First and foremost is its sponsorship of Biology Night. The Biology Club also sponsors science films which are shown in Roberts Auditorium. The money collected is used to buy pictures, charts, and exhibits for the Biology Department. The club has enormously increased its membership during the past two years.

Because of the increased interest in the fine art of shutter-clicking, the Camera Club has been divided into two groups, the beginners and the advanced. By sponsoring contests, this organization encourages the members to do creative work in photography. To this end, members of the Camera Club take part in instructive discussion and criticism of each other's photography. As a further inducement to those interested in photography, the school dark room is open to the members to do their own printing, developing, and enlarging at no expense to themselves other than providing their own paper and paying the nominal dues. The more proficient in the science of photography take snapshots of many important school events and prominent personalities in school life. The entire group, veterans and novices, develops its skill through instruction and practice.

No doubt, many of you do not realize the vital part the Central Treasury plays in the life of the various activities at Brookline High School. The purpose of this organization is designed mainly for the safe-keeping of the various activities' money, and to present to the Superintendent of Schools, other officials, and to the various activity treasurers and advisors a complete, accurate financial report of the receipts and disbursements of cash. During the past year, there have been eight activities added to the Central Treasury, giving this organization at present a total of 58 active accounts. The organization is under the able leadership of Mr. Ehnes, Treasurer, and the following honor commercial students serve in the positions noted below.

The Chess Club is designed exclusively for those who delight in thought. Chiefly a game of concentration, involving mental agility rather than luck or physical skill, chess keeps each player always anticipating the moves of his opponent and seeking the best possible moves to secure victory quickly and decisively. Under the supervision and instruction of Miss Allen, the members learn such fine points of this venerable game as the Catalan system and the Indian Defense as well as the many variations and openings. Playing chess, the members develop their powers of reasoning and a sense of sportsmanship. They improve their skill not only by playing the game but by, after the game, reconsidering what moves might have been made.

The judicial branch of the student government at Brookline High School is the Court of Justice. Consisting of a Chief Justice and eight Associate Justices, the court tries all cases brought before it by the Marshal Force. The Captain of the Marshals, acting as Prosecuting Attorney, presents the case against the indicted offender, after which the defense presents its case, producing whatever witnesses it may have to offer in its behalf. The decision arrived at by the judges is questioned neither by the defendant nor by any other member of the school. Such operations of student government offer to the entire school practice in democracy, an understanding of the basic principles which are essential to those who would live wisely under the American form of government.

Time is running short, and with only a minute left our rebuttalist is lashing at his opponent, hitting his weak spots, returning his blows, forcing him into submission—all verbally of course. He is a member of the Brookline High School Debating Society. Under the able leadership of President Irving Salloway, the society strives to teach its future Daniel Websters the fundamentals of good debating.

After acquiring the ability to secure material and organize it logically for intramural debates, ambitious students are then eligible to match their skill with pupils of other schools in the interscholastic debates. Five intramural debates and three interscholastic debates are scheduled for the year, giving opportunity to all participants toward quick thinking and effective speaking.

A newcomer to the ranks of extra-curricular activities at Brookline High School, the Future Home-Makers of America takes the place of the former Foods and Clothing Clubs. Young as it is, however, this club has undertaken the important task of training its members in the fields of clothing and goods. They study various fashions and color combinations as well as cooking techniques, and gain valuable practice in the preparation of common foods. A major reason for the outstanding success of the F. The purpose of the French Club is to stimulate interest in the life· customs, language, art, music, literature and history of France and of the French people. The meetings are conducted in French and French conversation is encouraged. Between October and May, there are monthly programs consisting of French plays, songs and games. Membership is open to all students who have completed a year of French with an average of A or B, and to first year students who have an average of A for the first semester of French. Because of its fine programs, the French Club has become one of the most popular organizations at Brookline High School.

The primary object of the German Club is to give its members opportunity to learn more of German culture. In the meetings, this is brought about by movies, lectures concerning Germany and listening to characteristic German music. Usually the meetings are on an informal plane with an opening speech in German by President Peter Tritsch. The annual Christmas Party and spring outing provide added sparkle to the German Club program. Educational as well as social discussions complete the well-balanced program offered to the members of the German Club.

The Girls' League is definitely the largest and busiest organization at Brookline High School. From the eighth grade party on, where she first becomes acquainted with the League, every girl is vitally aware of it actively. The Mothers' Teas, the Christmas Dance, the traditional spring Supper Party with its excellent bill of fare and equally excellent entertainment, are high spots of the club program. Regular Friday meetings give constant entertainment through many well-organized programs arranged by various members. There are gay socials; and to balance these, the League frequently has distinguished and popular speakers. Its committees provide many opportunities to the girls for service to themselves, the school, and the community. The League offers a well-rounded program in which any girl may partake.

It may not be "the sweetest music this side of heaven", but the unusually high treble and strong rich contralto voices of the members of the Girls' Vocal Ensemble do blend beautifully. The small group, composed of Brookline High School's Lily Ponses and Grace Moores, achieves finished performances only after long hours of practice and of hard work. There is no individual glory; it is recognized as a group project.

These talented vocalists selected from the Choral Society supply the "finishing touch" to school programs and assemblies such as Parents' Night, Christmas, and Memorial Day. Away from home, the Enemble entertains at the Teachers' Club meetings. Gifted with the ability to present a program for the enjoyment of all, the girls receive the warm welcome which their singing merits from both students and faculty.

One of the most important organizations of Brookline High School is the Lunchroom Staff. Twelve permanent employees aided by seventeen students compose this corps of indispensable workers. They perform daily miracles of feeding a multitude of hungry people—faculty and students. The staff prepares, displays, and sells attractive, balanced lunches to nearly two thousand hungry customers. Performing this essential work with speed and dispatch, the group deserves a special vote of gratitude from all of us. The new eight platoon system of lunches provides for increased efficiency, shorter lines and longer lunch periods.

Under the able direction of Mr. Joslin, the orchestra has this year, as in years past, contributed immeasurably to the growth of a wider appreciation of music by the student body. The price of perfection in their symphonic arrangements and harmony is long hours of practice each day by all members of the orchestra. Tedious as this program may seem to us, it is not only an enjoyable routine to these adept amateurs, but a real opportunity to develop technique in playing their instruments with the accompaniment of all their fellow players. In its activities, the orchestra fills a dual purpose, that of increasing the versatility of its members and of improving the musical taste of the whole school.

The Ensemble specializes in the classical interpretations and spends many hours in painstaking practice. Their concerts are enjoyed upon many occasions by the more discriminating students and their guests. There can be little doubt that the members of the Orpheus Ensemble display extraordinary skill and give great pleasure with their playing of chamber music. The Ensemble has greatly broadened and deepened the interest of Brookline High School in the classics.

Two divisions of the old Science Club, the Chemistry and Physics Clubs separated so that they might carry on more detailed research in their individual fields. Meeting twice each month, the members prepare lectures and projects in their respective branches of science and construct scientific apparatus which will be added to the school's scientific facilities. Trips are taken to manufacturing plants to see the practical application of science to industry. Both of these clubs serve to educate the students to live in the scientific world of the future, and to focus the attention of the entire school upon the scientific achievements of the age in which we live.

One of the most popular and active organizations, the Radio Club, provides many worthwhile programs for its membership. Meeting once a month, usually on a Tuesday afternoon, the students become familiar with the techniques of radio broadcasting. They learn to apply some of these techniques in regular practice, and to enjoy radio more as a listener because of a better understanding of its problems. The high points are a radio writing contest with the winning script cast and produced, the Christmas party with its opportunity for club members to exhibit their talent, and the Outside Speakers, professional radio people, who tell the inside story of radio. The Radio Club also takes part in the Listen and Learn Series broadcast from W B Z on Mondays from September through January.

Under the watchful eye of John Phillips, the Sagamore, our school newspaper, has risen to new heights of journalistic accomplishment. The accuracy of its news, the originality and wit of its features, the timeliness of its editorials, and the colorful descriptiveness of its sports new mark the Sagamore as one of the leading scholastic publications in New England. This high standard of achievement has been attained by the industry of many skilled workers, each intent upon excelling all previous journalistic endeavors. Long hours of writing, rewriting, and proofreading are well rewarded by the finished product, which is not only a source of satisfaction to its composers, but also a great contribution to the enlightenment of the entire student body.

The government of a nation is only as good as the men who administer it. Similarly, a school government can be no better than the members who direct it. How capable these members of our School Council are, has been amply proven by the efficiency displayed in performing their duties in the past as well as in the present. For this is the organization which grants charters to our many extra-curricular activities, makes recommendations for the improvements of both lunchroom and corridors, acts as an intermediary in disputes involving students organization and regulates student government elections. Its members are elected annually from the school at large—two from the Freshman House, three from the Sophomore House, Six from the Junior House, eight from the Senior House and one from the Fifth Year House. By keeping in touch with Dr. Andree and with the co-ordinate governing bodies, the Marshal force and the Court of Justice, the School Council helps to maintain the lofty standards and high morale characteristic of Brookline High School.

Up-to-date on all the rules for social courtesies, this eager group, under the direction of Mrs. Means, develops a liking for the finer things in life, both cultural and artistic, and learns how to do the right thing at the right time. Correct social attitudes and habits, ranging from table manners to proper dress for different occasions, are presented at the meetings held once a month on Tuesday afternoon. After the formal business, entertainment is provided either by a guest speaker or by a group of talented students. To conclude an enjoyable afternoon, the members enjoy refreshments and an informal social hour.

In its monthly meetings, the Spanish Club follows a carefully organized schedule prepared by La Junta Directiva (the executive board). Playing Spanish games, singing Spanish songs, hearing lectures in English upon Latin-American subjects and conversing in Spanish, the members strengthen bonds of Latin-American relations. They also increase their knowledge of Spanish and its backgrounds by understanding the language and customs of our neighbors to the south. Prominent on the program are the Spanish-style Christmas celebration at which the members participate in the traditional Spanish festivities. The picnic at Hammond Pond climaxes and closes a year of colorful activity.

Chances are that anyone looking into the caged compartment back-stage in Roberts Auditorium, that cage marked "Danger—Keep Out", would find a serious and enthusiastic member of the busy Stage and Electrical Staff carefully manipulating the various levers and switches which operate the light and sound effects. A peek at the wind machines, thunder sheets and various other back-stage effects of drama, would reveal similar members. All are intently busy at their tasks and proficient in the technical work in which they revel. To these people who, through their patience and ingenuity make the machinery of our dramatic productions function smoothly and surely, goes a vote of grateful praise.

Stamps and coins are both media of exchange. The stories behind the appearances of many of the rarer stamps and coins are fascinating. These stories are especially interesting to experienced philatelists, of Brookline High School. Here at the meetings of the club stamps are discussed, bought, sold and traded. Both stamp and coin collections are examined and explained, and speakers tell of various kinds of stamps, their value and many phases of collecting. Anyone interested in these hobbys, should belong to this club and share in its development, no matter whether they are beginners or experts.

The Student Forum, a lively and popular organization, was formed four years ago so that students could have the opportunity to discuss freely current problems. Serving as a stimulus to wider information, the meetings of this organization concentrate upon events, trends, and problems touching the lives and thoughts of the students of today. Guest speakers give impetus and new light to the problems. Some members serve as ushers at meetings of the Brookline Forum, while other members attend these forums and take part in the discussions. The Student Forum is one of the most important societies of Brookline High School, in that it contributes to the morale of the school and provides a meeting ground for the exchange of ideas.

A source of invaluable information to all students at Brookline High School as well as a helpful guide to freshmen, the Students Handbook was sold in all home rooms early this fall by the members of the circulation staff. After great amounts of information had been amassed by reporters of the Handbook staff, the editors rewrote the information, arranged it in proper order, and sent it to press. Its subjects vary from an account of student government· including a reproduction of the Constitution of the School Council, to a number of helpful hints for freshmen. This pamphlet has become required reading for a proper understanding of the activities, schedule and government of Brookline High School.

b.h.s. choral society

Long hours of hard practice are necessary to achieve success and to acquire those perfect vocal tones. "Do, re, me, fa, so, la, ti, do—sing a little more softly, do open your mouths and let the sound come out, keep your heads still." These are a few of the directions with which the members of the Choral Society finds themselves bombarded. But their labors reap many rewards. Undoubtedly, the Society harbors many famous singers of the future, for much real talent can be found here. All types of melodies are sung, from popular ditties to soaring operatic arias. The Society offers a real opportunity for those gifted with musical talent.

dramatic society

Those sophomores, juniors and seniors interested in dramatics either through acting or back-stage mechanics, such as costuming, publicizing and "props", form an active and large group. Each year the society offers outstanding dramatic presentations. This year was notable for the excellent productions of Suspect, Little Women, Tovarich, and June Mad. These productions offer theater to the general public for a reasonable fee. They also provide to the talented and industrious, experience in acting, in the art of make-up, and in the intricacies of costuming. Paid in full for their efforts by the well-earned admiration, respect, and praise of the school, the members of the Dramatics Society continue to produce inspiring entertainment for the entire student body.

Carrying on activities designed to stimulate interest in literature and to promote creative writing at Brookline High School, the English Club plans programs each year which include lectures on literature, trips to places famed in song and story, and the Creative Writing Contest in poetry and prose. All members are upperclassmen who have received marks of "B" or better in English during the previous year. They meet once each month under the direction of Mr. Newsom. At these meetings, not only do the students develop a greater understanding and appreciation of well-known literary works, but they enjoy the congenial company of their fellow-members.

Efficient, interested in books, agreeable and eager . . . yes, we could go on naming the many admirable qualities of the members of this staff, who willingly devote their time to the school's beautiful and unusual library. Working during study periods or before and after school, this capable group of more than one hundred boys and girls perform numerous duties—mending pages, patching torn corners, pasting bindings on magazines and labels on pamphlets, checking library cards, stamping books, and writing out library slips. Their duties are manifold, their accuracy amazing, their courtesy astounding.

Under the direction of Mrs. Siebens and Miss Coon and the able leadership of Judy Aronson, this efficient and well-organized team manages to keep things running smoothly for the benefit of all of us. Meanwhile, they gain important library experience and a vast knowledge of books for future use.

This group, elected by the school at large, is the law enforcing body of Brookline High School. Marshals stationed at various posts throughout the building keep order and direct the traffic passing between classes, at recess, in the lunchroom, or immediately before and after school hours. At most school functions there are always Marshals on hand to keep order in a friendly yet firm manner. The Captain of the Marshals, chief executive, and various special associate executives help to regulate the group. Efficiency is their aim and it is one fully realized. To enforce school ordinances, the Marshals have the power to send offenders to the Court of Justice for trial. We may all rightly express our gratitude to the Marshal Force for a difficult job well done.

At the frequent meetings of the Pep Club, students possessed of an abundance of school spirit are given an opportunity to spread that noble emotion throughout the entire populace of Brookline High School. The chief activities of the organization at other times are selling beanies and banners, publicizing the games and helping arrange transportation to those played out of town. During the year, the Pep Club co-sponsors the Sports Dance and the faculty-varsity basketball game. The greatest efforts of the Pep Club, however, are devoted to producing the rallies which have had such a marked effect on school spirit during the football season.

Though the war is over, the Red Cross is still at work supplying those less fortunate than ourselves with the necessities and a few of the luxuries of life. A branch of the American Junior Red Cross operating at Brookline High began its official drive in March directed by President Peter Voudouris. After having established an enviable record for service during wartime, having collected books, magazines and playing cards for servicemen, the Red Cross now turns to its many important postwar tasks. Working throughout the year, the Red Cross received gratifying response from the student body in its Christmas clothing and toys collection as well as in its March drive.

The class "B" championship for the second consecutive year was captured by Brookline High School's undefeated varsity team. Unexcelled in strength and ability, the "Red and Blue" smashed right through all their opponents and climaxed their season with a 40 to 6 win over Newton, our traditional Thanksgiving Day rival. This complete triumph was brough about by real team cooperation and spirit. Spearheading the attack were all-scholastic Gundy Kirrane, Joe O'Connor, ad Ed Eexton. Also shining in the roster were backs Tony Misho and Tommy Taylor who turned in remarkable performances. The season was also gratifying to Coach Downes who saw his first undefeated season since his arrival at Brookline nine years ago. His great coaching contributed in no small measure to the team's series of victories climaxed by the Newton victory.

"Aided by Paul Flanagan, Tommy Tucker, Ed Mayo, Jordon Lippman, Fred Ravreby, Ted Sexton, Moe Morrison, Bill LaPorto, Carl Cohen and Bill Blair, we should have a powerful team this year. They work hard, have the ability, and deserve great credit."

This statement was given to the "Murivian" by Mr. Bruce, capable coach of the Varsity Basketball team, before the season started. His comment, as we have seen, held true in every respect. Spurred on by the cheering student body of Brookline High School, the team has done its best. Mr. Bruce, all around man at the High School, deserves credit not only for his coaching of a good varsity team this year, but also for his leadership of a fine Junior Varsity.

Carrying the pitching chores will be "southpaw slugger", McPhee and "Tall Paul Robeson." Along with these stars are such standouts as Ed Lenk, Tom Taylor and Gundy Kirrane of football fame. When the crack of the bat announces the arrival of the baseball season, the Brookline High School Varsity Baseball Team will run out onto the field justly confident of a successful season.

Hockey, one of the world's fastest sports, is a great favorite at Brookline High School. The players receive a thrill from traveling down the ice at high speed and shooting the puck for the goal. This game requires a high degree of perfection in ice skating and the ability to think quickly. The success of our team this year was due to their readiness to co-operate and their thorough knowledge of this exciting sport. Under the outstanding guidance of Coach McCann, the hockey team swept down the ice led by Captain Kirrane. Along with developing physical progress, the members of the hockey team learned to practice good sportsmanship.

ROW 2: Mr. Coutts, Egan, Bloom, Lanfield, Carmody, Brickstaff, Newman, Gonzales, Cobin, Pearl, Cunningham, Dana-Bashin, Davidson.

ROW 3: Carver, Greenblatt (Mgr.), Sexton, H. Leavitt, E. Leavitt.

Under the captainship of David Freedman, breaststroke star, the swimming team chalked up another successful year. Through long hours of practice, developing endurance, the team perfected its flutter kick, freestyle stroke, racing dive and backstroke under the expert supervision of Mr. Coutts. Also highlighted in the roster were Robert Silverstein and William Pender, freestylers. The great stamina of these boys in returning almost every afternoon each week has been rewarded by a high degree of achievement in the art of natation. The members of the swimming team have participated in this active sport with an enthusiasm that has paid off in actual competition. In the water, these swimmers develop co-ordination and a sense of sportsmanship.

This year's picture is brightened by the most successful and well balanced track teams that B. H. S. has enjoyed for many years. Under the direction of popular Coach Bates all of the teams, Fall, Winter and Spring, have emerged as outstanding. The best cross country team the school has had sparkled with the talents of Sanborn, Pickett, P. Dalton, V. Dalton, Strickland, Rogers and Caploe. The indoor track season was highlighted by the opening win over Weymouth which marked Weymouth's first defeat at home in seven years. McGarry was the outstanding performer, scoring 13 points. Captain Pickett, Haskell, McGarry and Aeschliman shone in the dashes. The middle and long distance leaders were P. Dalton, V. Dalton and Sanborn. The aces for high jumps included Kingman, Harrison and Robinson with Sexton, Goldman, Haskell and Aeshliman, too. McGarry and Pickett featured in the broad jumps. Kirrane and Misho excelled in the shot put department, while Aeschliman and McGarry shone at the hurdles.

We can look forward this year to a successful season for our vigorous racqueteers. Coach Wells, manning a veteran team, will in all probability taste the fruits of victory. The reason for this optimism is the fact that almost all of last year's varsity remain with us and that the tennis team as a whole shows excellent spirit. Last fall, as is the custom, the tennis team held its intramural tournament to decide players for the varsity team. Win or lose, however, every member of the tennis team benefits from the wholesome competition of one of the most active of sports.

With at least four former players returning to the tee off for Brookline at the start of the season, and with Coach Woodlock at the helm, this year's Brookline High School Golf Club has more than held its own in interscholastic competition. Because it is one of the unheralded sports at Brookline High, there are not too many rabid fans watching the matches. However, a small efficient group of veteran golfers brought the honors to Brookline High School. Though Brookline already has a fine team, with a little moral support we could have one of the finest teams in the state. The success of the team is primarily due to the natural ability and experience of Captain Frank Corcoran, Hugh Mullin, George Lynch, and Frank Ouimet. Despite the odds, our golf team has established a fine record during a season of keen competition.

This year's Junior Varsity Football aggregation, under the able guidance of Coach McCann, swept through a highly successful season, suffering its only defeat at the hands of a powerful Melrose eleven. The season was climaxed by a spectacular victory over Newton, our arch rival. Some of the bright spots in the Junior Varsity lineup included backs Dick O'Hearn, Connie Lavery, Neil Werner and linesmen Richard Kirby and Al Wolfson. Coach Harry Downes is looking forward eagerly to the 1947 football season when these stellar performers will be given an opportunity to display their talents in varsity garb. The success of the Varsity Football Team next year will depend upon the skill and brawn of these Junior Varsity stars.

Although he lost many of his former stars, Coach Bruce's Junior Varsity offered stiff competition to all its opponents. Through hard practice and superb instruction, his team produced some fine prospects for next year's Varsity. Despite a rugged schedule, the team held its own throughout the season. Doubtless, these boys have attained all their victories by team sportsmanship and cooperation, a virtue possessed by every member of the team. Their schedule included such teams as Arlington, Rindge Tech, Exeter, Waltham, Watertown and Newton. Though the Junior Varsity seldom receives proper recognition, they will next year be the backbone of the Varsity. Their success this year is indicative of the performance we can expect next year.

Coach—MR. BRUCE

By virtue of tedious practice and great ability, the Freshman eleven has shaped up to be the probable successor to the Class "B" Championship. Next year under the direction of Mr. McCann, these boys will learn more about the scientific game of football that Brookline plays. Along with some scrimmaging, the team carried on a schedule which turned out to be very successful in games won as well as experience gained. Leading the attack for the team, John Sheehan and Ed Warrell hold promise of being standouts in their future years at B. H. S. With more experience and added weight, this team will, no doubt, be a leading contender for future Class "B" Championships.

Basketball is fast becoming a major sport for girls. There are sixty teams with every home room in the school having a team and captain. This form of tournament gives every girl in the school an opportunity to engage in this popular sport. The game is similar to the boys' game with these exceptions: the girls have a more limited area and they are allowed only one dribble. The Roberts and Lincoln Houses play every Monday afternoon, while the Akers and Packard Houses play on Tuesday afternoons. Eight home room teams play off games during the week. Judging by the number of contests and participants, Basketball leads all other sports for girls at Brookline High School.

Golf at Brookline High School has attained the wide, enthusiastic participation of many talented girls. The team has practiced hard by limbering up its golf muscles with deadly drives, chip shots, and professional putts. The talents of the girls are carefully developed by professional instructors who work continuously for the perfection of style. All practice is held at the Brookline Municipal Course where the golfers can take full advantage of all available facilities offered. This group of about fifty has achieved a high degree of individual perfection and is learning the knack of patient perseverance as well.

The popular sport of riding naturally maintains an important role in the activities of the girls at Brookline High School. The girls enjoy the exhilaration of trotting or cantering along the bridle paths in the Spring and Fall. Some fifty girls under the professional supervision of instructors from the riding school have learned the techniques of horseback riding.

On almost any pleasant day during the fall and early winter at Dean Road, Brookline High's tennis enthusiasts can be seen earnestly engaged in developing proficiency in this popular sport. Under the guidance of Mrs. Brusko, the more advanced players participate in intramural tennis tournaments during the fall in preparation for the season of inter-scholastic competition in the spring. The Intermediate players also participate in a tennis tournament during the fall season. The winners of this tournament become candidates for the Varsity Squad. In addition to these groups, there is a beginner squad which receives instruction in the fundamentals of tennis. These players become the nucleus for the intermediate group. In playing tennis, the girls develop skill and practice good sportsmanship.

Every Wednesday afternoon, all girls who are interested in swimming flock to the Brookline Municipal Pool. Recreational swimming is the chief aim, but there are also meets and play days with many other schools. The varsity, consisting of the twenty best swimmers, is picked in the second winter term. These girls participate in more advanced swimming and diving, while there are classes for beginners and intermediates. There is fun for all and perhaps a future aquatic star is now spending her Wednesday afternoons at the Pool. In learning to swim well, the girls are developing themselves physically while learning a useful sport.

Coaches—MISS KELLEY, MISS SUTHERLAND

A sport with an illustrious history, archery has found a place in the extra-curricular activities of Brookline High School. Because of the limited facilities of the gym, only a small number of girls can participate in this fascinating sport. Although there are no inter-scholastic matches to necessitate the formation of a varsity team, the six girls who amass the highest scores become members of an honorary varsity team. Providing both competition and an understanding of one of the world's oldest sports, archery is also a source of enjoyment and physical development.

Growing interest in hockey and the keen competitive spirit which it offers, tend to keep this sport among the most popular of athletics for girls. This fall at Dean Road, under the able coaching of Mrs. Brusko, a large squad developed their stick techniques and found enjoyment in competing with girls from other high schools—Needham, Beaver Country Day, Dana Hall, Abbot Academy, Melrose, Newton, and Choate. The members of the Girls' Hockey Team spent many days in healthful activity out-of-doors, cultivated team spirit and sportsmanship.
